PROFESSIONAL MOUNTAINEERS

- With tremendous experience and knowledge of the game, Nikki Izzo-Brown has built a reputation for getting the most out of her student-athletes.
- The veteran coach maximizes the performance potential of her players by providing opportunities to process information in multiple ways in order for each to find success.
- Paving the way for the success of recent Mountaineers, Katie Barnes was the first women's soccer player to be named an All-American and was drafted with the ninth overall pick by the Carolina Courage of the 2002 WUSA draft.
- Coach Izzo-Brown also has worked her way onto the national scene as an assistant for USA Soccer, working with multiple youth national teams .
- During her coaching tenure, nearly two dozen Mountaineers have participated in the national team scene. Most recently defender Bry McCarthy trained and made appearances with the full Canadian National Team.
- McCarthy was one of six players assigned to the Western New York Flash through an allocation process in the new National Women's Soccer League (NWSL).
